

Attend wound care seminar

THE Dihlabeng Regional Hospital (DRH) once again put its best foot forward when it came to innovative health care by hosting the Free State Wound Care Seminar on Thursday. The Competency Programme for Complicated Wounds delivered by Thabo Makhobo, a wound care expert and lecturer of the University of the Free State, who is also an executive member of the Wound Healing Association of South Africa (Whasa), was presented to a variety of health and medical professionals from the Thabo Mofutsanyana District. Delegates were very happy with the latest and effective wound care methods and products shared by the experts. Event organiser April Mofokeng was also impressed. "This is but one of the ways that the Free State Department of Health together with our district aims to improve service delivery for the benefit of our patients and the community at large," he said. From the left are Thabo Makhobo (facilitator), Seloane Moeketsane (enrolled nursing assistant), Matshidiso Ndika (enrolled nursing assistant), Mathipane Mohale (enrolled nursing assistant), Sandra Leeuw (professional nurse) and April Mofokeng (operational manager).

Photo: Supplied